

Peptones tailored for vaccine production

Designed specifically for human and animal health applications

We offer an extensive portfolio of animal origin-free and animal origin peptones to supplement a variety of cell culture media. These products provide an alternative to serum and offer essential nutrients shown to increase performance and production in a variety of vaccine applications.

Experience driven by high-quality standards

With our experience and expertise in designing and manufacturing peptones combined with our stringent quality standards and rigorous raw material sourcing policies, we can provide you with high-performing Gibco™ products and associated documentation to speed your vaccine to market.
